

Attending the local school- Inclusion that's good for everyone

Friday 1st March, 2019 Mackay

Mackay Event

- Community Resource Unit Ltd in partnership with All Abilities Mackay
- Presented by Bob Jackson
- Cost: $100 professionals or $30 family members

About the Workshop:

- For children with disability, being included in your local school can provide a strong foundation for an inclusive life.
- Despite solid research evidence about the benefits of inclusive education for students with and without disability, there is confusion about what good inclusive education looks like in practice.

About the Topic:

- This workshop will provide the opportunity to learn from an experienced educator and academic about key features of inclusive education, based on research evidence, law and current policy.

Topics Covered Will Include:

- Building a vision for inclusion
- Including all learners in the same curriculum
- Fostering classroom and playground relationships to build belonging
- Whole class inclusive strategies and planning individualised supports
- Understanding "behaviour"
- Home-school partnerships and problem-solving

About the Presenter:

- Dr Bob Jackson is the managing Director of Include (WA) and has been working in the field of human services and education since the 1970s.
- Bob has had a wide experience as a Direct Care worker, Psychologist, Manager of Disability Services, Researcher, Director of a Research Centre on Disability, Associate Professor of Education and consultant to government, private and public education systems, agencies and families.
- Bob regularly presents workshops for families and educators across Australia and is a nationally recognised leader in Inclusive Education.

Who Should Attend?

- This event is for families, teachers, professionals working with children and families, childcare workers and educational support staff.

Using Your NDIS Funding at CRU:

For self-managing and plan managed NDIS participants, see Learning Objectives on the events page online. You can decide if this is a reasonable and necessary support to help you family member achieve their goals.
